

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.—Advt.

NEW TRADE RECORD FOR U. S. THIS YEAR

Aggregate Value of Our World Commerce Will Exceed Former Figures.

Every probability that the foreign trade of the United States will make a new high record during the calendar year 1918 is shown in a compilation by the National City Bank, which estimates the trade, based upon the figures to date, as follows: Total imports approximately $3,100,000,000 and exports approximately $6,500,000,000. This $9,600,000,000 approximate total compares with $9,185,000,000 in 1917, the former high record. The aggregate excess of exports over imports for the four and a half years of war will exceed $11,000,000,000, more than that of the forty years preceding the war.

The imports from Europe for the year will approximate only $350,000,000 against $550,000,000 in 1917 and $900,000,000 in 1912. Even exports to Europe will show a slight decline compared with last year, approximately $3,900,000,000 against $4,054,000,000 in 1917. The estimate does not include the large unrecorded export to Europe upon Government vessels, which are not required to report to Custom Houses.

WRECK INQUIRY PUT OFF.

Armistice Celebration Cause of Postponement Till To-Morrow.

Owing to the celebration of the signing of the armistice the investigation into the Brighton Beach train disaster was postponed yesterday until to-morrow.

District Attorney Lewis then will examine officers and directors of the New York Consolidated Railway Company in an effort to find out if any one "higher up" in the railroad system was responsible for the accident. The Public Service Commission obtained yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Benedict an order to show cause why the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company should not be compelled to comply with the commission's two-year-old order requiring the company to put in operation 125 new steel surface cars. The court order is returnable Nov. 18.

Steamer W. H. Murphy Burns, Unloading at Trinidad.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Nov. 12.—The American steamer William H. Murphy, 223 tons gross, while discharging a cargo of lumber from Texas took fire last night, vessel and the major portion of the cargo being destroyed. The fire apparently was accidental.

ENGLISH PRELATE MILITARISM'S FOE, SUFFRAGE'S FRIEND

Right Rev. Charles Gore Asks People Be Educated for Citizenship.

"It is a great thing to make the world safe for democracy, but it is a greater thing to make democracy safe for the world."

This was the keynote of the lecture, "England to America," delivered by the Right Rev. Charles Gore, Bishop of Oxford, England, to some 2,000 members and friends of the League for Political Education at Carnegie Hall last Saturday.

Early in his address the famous churchman took occasion to register his opposition to compulsory universal military service. He said he realized that the youth of our lands needs discipline, but there are overmastering considerations in opposition to the maintenance of great national military organizations.

"I see no prospect of saving our civilization," said he, "if, after the war, the nations continue to maintain great armies and navies, each building itself up against the others. Mutual suspicions and opposing leagues will arise, resulting almost inevitably in further wars. I hope both your country and mine will resist the fascination of military training, and that both will devote themselves rather to training their sons and daughters for citizenship."

Political education, he explained, does not mean the training of voters for membership in this or that political party. There is already too much of that in both England and America. What he pleaded for is that worthier training which shall instill in the minds of men and women, young and old, those higher ideals for which their countries stand, what good citizenship is, what kind of duties good citizens should fulfill.

He demanded the political training of women as well as men. He told of the bitter controversies that raged in England early in 1914 over the Suffrage question. But, said he, as soon as war came all this ceased, and the women set about showing that they merited the suffrage. All classes at once took up war work, thousands upon thousands going into munitions works and other industries, releasing men for the battle front.

Of the effect of this new work upon the morals of the women of England, Bishop Gore said he believed they had become imbued with the idea of public service such as they never had had before. "They ceased to be amateurs," he said, explaining that amateurs always expect to be thanked for whatever extraordinary thing they do, whereas the women of England are doing their duty without expectation of thanks—doing it simply because it is their public duty.

Wherever women have the suffrage, he said, they should be made to understand the tremendous responsibility that goes with it, and he appealed for a sustained and connected movement to give women an idea of what both country and city life might be, and to imbue them with the spirit of co-operation which makes for unity of purpose in the nation.

He pleaded too for the better political education of men, that they be taught to think politically, to view other nations in the light of true history rather than in the light of prejudiced school books of twenty years ago. He spoke of the ally obstinacy of England's king, George V., who led to the American Declaration of Independence, and said both nations had done stupid things, but that would be false to say Great Britain and America have different views of democracy.

"I hope," said he, "that you still read the Hulse Papers. They are almost necessary to an understanding of your own country's ideals." Bishop Gore told of the results achieved by the Workers' Educational Association in England. It was formed some years ago. "We quit lecturing," said he, "and collected people into small groups, seldom more than thirty in a class. The universities supplied tutors and the Board of Education gave the money. Each entrant had to promise that he would attend for at least two years. The teaching is non-sectarian and new political movements are recognized. Pupils are often required to write papers on the science of government. Our teachers say that much of this work is of a higher quality than that of a degree student in the universities."

The Bishop cautioned his hearers to limit the time of listening to lectures. "Lectures don't really educate," he said. "Men and women must read and write and think, and it is our duty to help them to do this. Power without knowledge always misuses itself. We cannot acquiesce in ignorant democracies. We must teach all people the relations of nations each other, and especially the internal workings of their own nations."

He closed by saying it would be a great mistake to try to crush the many, thus creating there an enduring hatred and desire for revenge. "They must be defeated and the power of their military institutions discredited," he said. "Also they must make full restitution and do penance. But we must strive to restore to them the spirit of Goethe and Schiller. And when Germany has learned to behave herself, we should welcome her back to the family of nations."

Mother, Your Child needs a Harmless Laxative.

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sick, or the Child is Cross, Feverish, Constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if the tongue is coated; this is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with bile and imperfectly digested food.

When listless, pale, feverish, with tainted breath, a cold, or a sore throat, if the child does not eat, sleep or act naturally, or has stomach-ache, indigestion or diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the waste matter, bile, and fermenting food will pass out of the bowels, and you have a healthy, playful child again. Children love this harmless "Fruit Laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" sweet and wholesome.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of genuine "California Syrup of Figs" and Elsie's Syrup Co., which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Adv.

Colgate's is "a Dentists' Dentifrice"

—because dentists know that the average mouth is best suited by a dentifrice that is free from risky chemicals.

Read this Story of the Evidence Chest

Two research firms of high standing made an investigation in every state of the Union, among 11,842 Dentists (nearly one-third of the entire profession), not only in large cities, but in small towns and villages.

The chest pictured here holds all of the question and answer sheets, dentists' signatures, affidavits and records of the country-wide inquiry.

So as to make sure that the dentists' answers would not be influenced one way or the other, the young men who called at the offices were instructed not to mention the name of any dental cream or powder in getting answers to the questionnaire. These young men knew only their direct employers, the two investigating firms. They had no idea that a manufacturer was behind this inquiry to ascertain the real facts.

Now for the results: The evidence shows that, not only is (1) Colgate's the first choice of more dentists than any other dentifrice, but also that (2) Colgate's is exclusively prescribed by more dentists than any other.

The Evidence Chest is deposited with the Title Guarantee & Trust Co. of New York City, where its contents may be examined by accredited committees on application to Colgate & Co.

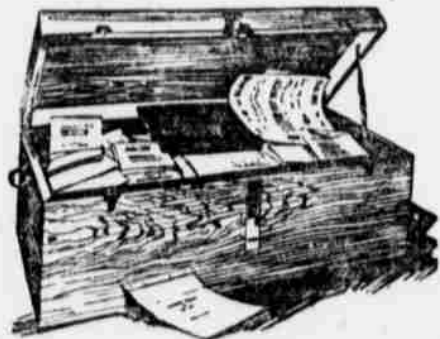

This preference shown by dentists for Colgate's is, undoubtedly, based on the fact that the mouths of nine people out of ten need a standard dentifrice.

And Ribbon Dental Cream is a standard—truly called "a dentists' dentifrice." It cleans thoroughly, washing the teeth without harmful grit, or the powerful drugs found in some tooth preparations. These risky chemicals may clean, but think of their action on the tender membranes of the mouth!

A safe, sane dentifrice for the use of the whole family is Colgate's—a normal dentifrice for normal mouths. Dentists, knowing these facts, use Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream in their own families instead of the strongly drugged tooth pastes, which are not suited for everyday use.

You, too, should use COLGATE'S—every day.
